TUESDAY, JUNE 6, 1882.

A Tartar's Courtship.

"What do you pay in your country for a wife?" asked a Tartar of an Englishman.

"We pay nothing. We ask the girl, and if she says yes, and her parents don't refuse, we marry her."

"But if the girl does not like you? If she hits you on the head with her whip, or gallops away when you ride up to her side?" replied the Tartar, referring to his nation's method of courtship by running after a girl on horseback, "what do you do in that case?"

"Why, we do not marry her?"

"But if you want to marry her very much; if you love her more than your best horse, and all your sheep and camels put together?" the Tartar persisted, putting an extreme case for the sake of the argument.

"We cannot marry her without her consent."

"And are the girls moonfaced?" he continued, setting forth a Tartar's perfection of female beauty.

"Some are," said the Englishman. For a few moments the Tartar seemed lost in meditation. Presently, removing his sheepskin hat, and rubbing his shaven head, he asked,—"Will you take me with you to your country? It would be so nice. I should get a moon-faced wife, and all for nothing. Why, she would not cost so much as a sheep."

"But suppose she would not have you?"

"Not have me!" and the Tartar looked astonished. "Not have me! Well, I should give her a white wrapper, or a ring for her ears or her nose."

"And if she still refused you?"

"Why, I should give her a gold ornament for her head, and what girl could resist such a present?"
